

Old Man

A New Year's Eve Song

by Jan Harmon - 1986

Gently sung

S
Now, in the mid - night, the Old Man goes qui - et - ly. Look by your

A
Now, in the mid - night, the Old Man goes qui - et - ly. Look by your

T
Now, in the mid - night, the Old Man goes qui - et - ly. Look by your

B
Now, in the mid - night, the Old Man goes qui - et - ly. Look by your bed - side, and you will find bright col - ored rib - bons and fea - thers of bed - side, and you will find bright col - ored rib - bons and fea - thers of

bed - side, and you will find bright col - ored rib - bons and fea - thers of

bed - side, and you will find bright col - ored rib - bons and fea - thers of

e - bo - ny. These are the trea - sures he leaves be - hind. For all things

e - bo - ny. These are the trea - sures he leaves be - hind. For all things

e - bo - ny. These are the trea - sures he leaves be - hind. For all things

e - bo - ny. These are the trea - sures he leaves be - hind. For all things

gi - ven, and so, for all things bro - ken, rib - bons to gar - land, and rib - bons to gi - ven, and so, for all things bro - ken, rib - bons to gar - land, and rib - bons to

gi - ven, and so, for all things bro - ken, rib - bons to gar - land, and rib - bons to gi - ven, and so, for all things bro - ken, rib - bons to gar - land, and rib - bons to mend. And, from the black - bird, a fea - ther - y to - ken, soon, to the mend. And, from the black - bird, a fea - ther - y to - ken, soon, to the

mend. And, from the black - bird, a fea - ther - y to - ken, soon, to the

mend. And, from the black - bird, a fea - ther - y to - ken, soon, to the

Al - der - wood, she will fly a - gain!

Al - der - wood, she will fly a - gain!

Al - der - wood, she will fly a - gain!

Al - der - wood, she will fly a - gain!